‘STEENKOOL-STORMLOOP’

2 provinsies oorweldig deur myn-aansoeke

‘Bedreig SA kos, water en mense se gesondheid’

Elise Tempelhoff

Gemeenskappe in die waterryke Mpumalanga en KwaZulu-Natal word oorweldig deur aansoeke om nuwe steenkoolmyne.

Dit is ondanks ondernemings van die Suid-Afrikaanse afvaardiging op die COP26-klimaatberaad verlede jaar dat die land van steenkool sal afsien en na ’n laekoolstofekonomie sal oorskakel.

Mariette Liefierink, direkteur van die Federasie vir ’n Volhoubare Omgewing (FVO), het gister in ’n verklaring gesê daar is “ ’n steenkool-stormloop” in Mpumalanga en KwaZulu-Natal.

Gemeenskappe kan skaars voorbly om as belanghebbendes te registreer of vergaderings by te woon.

Volgens Liefierink bedreig die aansoeke in Mpumalanga, waar daar 127 steenkoolmynprojekte en 47 aktiewe steenkoolmyne is, die land se voedsel- en waterbronne, asook mense se gesondheid weens ernstige lugbesoedeling.

Die meeste van die bestaande myne in Mpumalanga is oopgroefmyne en dié in die ontwikkelingsfase is ook vir oopgroefbedrywighede.

In KwaZulu-Natal is vyf reuse-steenkoolmyne reeds in bedryf.

Verskeie plase in KwaZulu-Natal,

Vernietiging

Liefierink sê die oopgroef-steenkoolmyne in Mpumalanga het reeds die Olifantsrivier ekologies vernietig.

Die Olifantsrivier het ’n geweldige groot opvangsgebied. Dit sluit die Wilgerivier in, wat as ekologies dood verklaar is nadat ’n ou skag by die verlate Kromdraai-myn gebreek en suur mynwater middel Februarie in verskeie spruite, die Wilgerivier, die Olifantsrivier en toe in die Loskopdam beland het. 3 ton dooie, eetbare vis is sowat tien dae gelede uit die Loskopdam geskep.

soos Frischgewaagd, Pivaanspoort 80, Rustenburg en Geluk, word deur Venatrix Colliery geteiken. Van die plase is in die Newcastle- en die Vryheid-omgewing (AbaQulusi-munisipaliteit) en in die noorde van KwaZulu-Natal.

Nog plase wat in dié provinsie geteiken word vir óf prospekter- of mynrege, is in die omgewing van Dundee.

Die meeste van die nuwe mynaansoeke is in Mpumalanga in die omgewing van Ogies, Kriel, Leslie en Hendrina.

Een van die grootste steenkoolmyne wat tans beplan word, is die New Largo-myn naby Balmoral. Dié massiewe oopgroefmyn (wat glo ook ’n ondergrondse myn insluit) word beplan om vir die Kusile-kragtasie steenkool te lewer.

New Largo het vroeër aan Anglo Coal behoort en is nou in die besit van Seriti Coal van Mike Teke. Thebe Investments, wat indirek bande met die ANC het, besit ook aandele in dié myn.

Liefierink sê sy en ander bewaringsorganisasies voer reeds die afgelope tien jaar ’n stryd om die departement van water en sanitasie so ver te kry om saam met die departement van visserie, bosbou en die omgewing, asook van minerale bronne en energie, ekologies sensitiewe gebiede (soos opvangsgebiede van riviere, vleie, riviere en panne) te laat afbaken waar mynbou nie mag plaasvind nie.

Volgens haar is daar wel ’n nasionale watermeesterplan opgestel waarin hierdie aspekte bespreek word. Die sluitingsdatums vir van die besluite het reeds verstryk.

“Niks is nog daaraan gedoen nie en intussen word Suid-Afrika se sensitiewe, waterryke gebiede en goeie landbougrond opgemy,” sê sy.

Suid-Afrika is in November 2021 op die COP26-beraad R131 miljard belooft om hom van steenkoolkrag te spoen.

Volgens Liefierink is dit duidelik daar is geen sprake van samewerke-regering nie.

“Die departemente praat nie met mekaar nie. Die een weet nie wat die ander doen nie.”

Dit kan duidelik in Mpumalanga en KwaZulu-Natal gesien word waar steenkoolmyne reeds chaos veroorsaak het, sê Liefierink.

Nie een van die departemente het op navrae gereageer nie.

Kleiner ondernemings sal toenemend in sterk kragopwekkers moet belê om tydens beurtkrag kop bo water te kan hou.

Die dilemma is egter dat die veragte skerp styging in brandstofpryse weens die oorlog in Oekraïne dit nóg duurder gaan maak om kragopwekkers aan te dryf, én vervoer-uitgawes die hoogte gaan laat inskiet.

Vir ondernemings soos die Akker Koffiehuis in Potchefstroom, Noordwes, was beurtkrag tot nou toe “uitstekend” omdat hulle ’n groot kragopwekker het wat die koffiewinkel en WiFi-verbinding ten volle aan die gang kan hou, sê Bertus Els, die eienaar.

“Dit lok meer voete as gewoonlik omdat mense juis hierheen kom wanneer die kragtoevoer elders onderbreek is.”

Els sê die goeie sake wat hulle danksy die kragopwekker doen, het tot dusver die koste van die opwekker en diesel om dit aan die gang te hou, oorskadu.

Op Irene Farm in Pretoria verloop sake soortgelyk.

Chris Ferreira, ’n senior bedryfsbestuurder van die plaas, sê dié gewilde uitstapbestemming is nóg besiger danksy die groot kragopwekker wat krag aan die hele plaas verskaf.

“Die hoër brandstofpryse stoot ons uitgawes beslis op, maar ons het juis ’n kragopwekker nodig om die verliese te absorbeer. Ons kan nie bekostig om nie ’n opwekker te hê nie.”

Ander ondernemings wat nie sterk kragopwekkers kan bekostig nie, vrees egter dat as die beurtkrag te midde van die stygende brandstofpryse aanhou, sal hulle nie meer kan oorleef nie.

Charlene Richards, ’n haarkapper aan die Oos-Rand, sê hulle het ’n klein kragopwekker wat slegs lampies kan laat brand wanneer klante se naels versorg word.

“Dis nie sterk genoeg om die haardroërs ook aan die gang te hou nie. Ons het wel ’n groter kragopwekker by die huis.

“Met die hoë brandstofpryse is dit nie die moeite werd om dit na die salon te skuif en ure lank te laat loop net om haardroërs aan die gang te hou nie.”

Rannie Wilson, eienaar van die

Woofels-hondesalon in Polokwane, Limpopo, sê ook sy kan nie ’n groot kragopwekker bekostig nie.

“Dit kos by die R100 000. Ons kleiner een, wat R15 000 gekos het, kan net een industriële haardroër en twee skeermasjiene aandryf. Normaalweg werk ons met drie droërs en ses skeermasjiene.”

Wilson sê die stygende brandstofprys is ’n verdere kopseer omdat hulle honde gaan haal. “Intussen kan ons nie die tariewe aanhou verhoog nie, want dan gaan ons nie meer kan sake doen nie.”

Michael Wendels, eienaar van die meubelvervoer-onderneming Legend Removals in die Pretoria-omgewing, sê stygende brandstofpryse hou ’n ernstige bedreiging in.

“Dieselpryse het die laaste paar jaar drasties gestyg. Ons onsmet het beslis afgeneem. Dit noodsaak ons om pryse te verhoog, wat weer ’n invloed op ons klante het.”

Wendels is bang dat as die situasie weens die oorlog in Oekraïne bly vererger, sal klante nie meer hul dienste kan bekostig nie en alternatiewe oorweeg, soos om self meubels te vervoer.

Nadat fase 4-beurtkrag Suid-Afrikanners vandeeweek onkant betrap het, kan hulle uitsien na ’n meer verligte naweek waarin fase 2-beurtkrag tot Maandag sal geld – mits niks skeefloop nie.

Fase 4 sou aanvanklik tot vanoggend gegeld het, maar vier opwekkingseenhede is sedert Woensdag by Matla, Medupi, Kusile en Camden herstel en kan tot die kragnetwerk bydra. Eskom het derhalwe gisteraand beurtkrag na fase 3 afgeskaal waarna fase 2 vanoggend om 05:00 in werking getree het.

Intussen beraam baie mense planne om rugsteunkrag aan te skaf vir die ure wanneer hulle sonder elektrisiteit gelaat sal word.

Mense kan tans verskeie soorte UPS-stelsels (ononderbroke kragvoorsiening) vir enigiets tussen sowat R1 700 en R11 000 by Makro, Ellies of op Takealot koop.

Maar Christiaan Hattingh, besturende direkteur van die verskaffer van energie-oplossings AWPow, sê dié UPS-stelsels is gewoonlik hoogstens tydelike oplossings vir mense wat besig is om op hul rekenaar te werk en net genoeg krag wil hê om hul werk te stoor sodat hulle dit nie verloor nie. Dit lewer nie noodwendig genoeg krag om jou deur ’n kragonderbreking van twee en ’n half uur te dra nie.

Die basiese oplossing om ’n huishouding of klein onderneming deur die twee uur of langer van beurtkrag te help, is volgens Hattingh eerder ’n battery-rugsteunstelsel, maar dit kan ruweg van sowat R25 000 vir ’n intreevlakstelsel kos tot R30 000 tot R35 000 vir ’n beter stelsel, en dan tussen R50 000 en R60 000 vir ’n topklas-stelsel.

So ’n stelsel bestaan gewoonlik uit ’n kragomsetter van 5 kW en ’n litium-battery wat 5 kWh kan lewer. Dit beteken die battery kan vyf uur lank 1 000 watt elektrisiteit lewer voordat dit pap is.

Beurtkrag ‘kwel’ kabinet

Die kabinet is “gekwel” oor die jongste vlaag van beurtkrag, wat landwyd ontwrigting saai.

“Die feit dat dit nie op Woensdag se kabinetsvergadering bespreek is nie, beteken nie die regering gee nie daaroor om nie,” het Mondli Gungubele, minister in die presidensie, gister gesê.

Dit was toe joernaliste op ’n nuuskonferensie in Pretoria by hom wou weet waarom daar in die kabinetsverklaring wat hy voorgelees het, nie ’n woord oor die fase 4-beurtkrag gerop word waarin die land gedompel is nie.

“Dit was nie ’n item op die kabinetsvergadering nie. Dit wil nie sê dat dit nie belangrik is nie. Die betrokke minister werk daagliks daaraan. Dit sal net in die kabinet bespreek word as iets nuuts goedgekeur moet word.”

Gungubele het op die nuuskonferensie besluite van Woensdag se kabinetsvergadering bekend gemaak waarop kwessies soos die Rusland-Oekraïne-konflik, die komende Suid-Afrikaanse Beleggingskonferensie, die Covid-19-pandemie, die Afrika-energie-indaba en ander landkwessies bespreek is.

Hy het gesê die regering skenk deur die betrokke departemente daagliks aandag aan die probleme by Eskom.

Gungubele erken wel dat die regering beter oor die elektrisiteitsprobleme kan kommunikeer om vir die publiek groter gemoedsrus te gee en hul “angstigtheid” te verminder. – Llewellyn Prince

Bespaar só R1 500

’n Sonkragstelsel met 4 kW se sonpanele, ’n omsetter van 5 kW en battery van 10 kWh kan ruweg 600 kWh per maand lewer, wat R1 500 op ’n kragrekening van R2 000 per maand kan bespaar. So ’n stelsel kan met die besparingsbedrag in sewe of agt jaar afbetaal word. Hoe meer sonpanele bygevoeg word, hoe gouer sal dit afbetaal wees.

Met sonkrag-, battery- en omsetter-tegnologie wat voortdurend verbeter en relatief al hoe goedkoper raak, meen Hattingh mense wat dit kan bekostig, besef toenemend die voordele van sonkrag as langtermyn-alternatief vir afhanklikheid van Eskom- of munisipale kraglewering.

Kragstelsels wat sonpanele insluit, begin ruweg by R100 000, maar ’n ideale stelsel vir ’n gemiddelde middelklas-huishouding sal enigiets tussen R130 000 en R200 000 kos, sê Hattingh.

Die koste wissel so omdat elke huishouding se situasie, soos dakspasie, die kragverbruik en die spesifieke tegnologie wat gebruik word, sal verskil. Op grond van dié faktore ontwerp installateurs ’n stelsel pasgemaak vir ’n huishouding.

Sonkragstelsels kan ook moduler uitgebeel word.

’n Munisipaliteit soos Kaapstad is volgens Hattingh baie positief oor sonkrag en het minder streng beperkings op hoeveel sonkrag ’n huishouding mag installeer.

Die enigste beperking is jou dakspasie.

Die munisipaliteit is wel baie streng en wil weet wat jy alles aan hul kragnetwerk koppel en dring aan op behoorlike, goedgekeurde installasiewerk.

Hattingh beklemtoon dit is vir die meeste huishoudings of klein ondernemings te duur om heeltemal onafhanklik van Eskom of ’n munisipale kragnetwerk te word, want hul batterystelsels en kragopwekking moet genoeg krag kan lewer deur die winter en in spitsstye.

’n Stelsel wat dus aan die bestaande kragnetwerk gekoppel is, is meer kostedoeltreffend en het minder instandhouding nodig.
